

As CEO of LatentView, Gopi is responsible for the overall growth of the organization. Under his leadership LatentView has strengthened its footprint within the United States while expanding into Europe and Asia. LatentView was named 'Analytics Company of the Year' in 2015 by Frost & Sullivan.

Gopi has a history of leading global companies to positions of strength in geographically diverse markets. He began his career as a brand manager with Johnson & Johnson where he worked for a decade, finally spearheading the company's Vision Care business in India and Malaysia. He then joined Philips at its headquarter in Netherlands, handling M&As and general management responsibilities. In 2010, he was named CEO of Philip's DirectLife, a health and wellness business.

When not leading a dynamic team of data analysts, you will find him scuba diving in remote locations around the world.

Gopi has a degree in Mechanical Engineering from Indian Institute of Technology, Madras and an MBA from International Institute of Management Development (IMD), Switzerland.

Gopi is the Chairman of the IT/ITeS committee at ASSOCHAM (Associated Chambers of Commerce of India). He is also a charter member of TiE, Chennai (The Indus Entrepreneurs).
